Vere Global Weekly Commentary - 22 April 2019

So...

The market has had a nice run since the beginning of the year, but as you can see from the chart below investors are getting a little (a lot) greedy. A question you might ask is, "why is it bad that a lot of investors have a really positive outlook for stocks?"

Think of it this way, has there ever been a moment in your life that you felt really good about a job promotion or doing really well on a test, then you get the actual results and they are bad? You end up getting really depressed and unhappy for a short while. The same thing happens to stocks, get overconfident and a little bad news can go along way down. Our advice for now, wait for a pullback before committing new cash to the market.
